The Turkish Menace In Near East Again

British Feel That It Must Be Promptly Dealt With

LONDON, May 23.—Threats of fresh trouble in the Near East are attracting attention here. Referring to the reported wrecking of the bridge across the Maritza river connecting Adrianople and Karagatch, the Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent says that although the railway bridge has not been damaged, it is in danger, and recalls that the Turks are known to have mined it. The Maritza expedition, he says, is merely an incident. He adds: "It coincides curiously enough with the landing of troops in flagrant violation of the London convention at or near the isthmus of Bulaif which joins the Gallipoli Peninsula with the mainland. This is regarded with far greater seriousness in British circles than what has been happening at Adrianople, for it aims at cutting off overland communication between the Allied garrison at the Dardanelles and Constantinople. This already awkward position would be further aggravated if the Turks by the destruction of all the Maritza river bridges made it impossible for the Greek army to re-enter Thrace without grave delay, in case of the Allies being suddenly attacked at Constantinople. The budding Turkish menace cannot be dismissed as bluff, and there is some realization in competent quarters that it must be promptly dealt with." It is suggested that the reported movement of Allied Mediterranean ships of war toward the Dardanelles is connected with the Bulaif landing, but there is no official confirmation of this.

Balwin Gets a Fine Reception From All Sections

LONDON, May 23.—No incoming Prime Minister could wish for a better reception from the press than Stanley Baldwin received. The morning newspapers say that the appointment is in accordance with popular wishes and the best solution under the circumstances. Reports from Conservative quarters throughout the country confirm this opinion. The comments of Labor and Liberal newspapers are influenced of course by political considerations, but none has a word against the new Premier personally. The Morning Post recalls to-day that during the war when Mr. Baldwin was prevented from physical participation in the conflict he had his wealth appraised and gave exactly one-fourth as a contribution toward the nation's effort.

BALGRADE, May 24.—The Greek Government is reported to have asked the Jugo Slav Government to state what attitude it would adopt in the event of the resumption of hostilities in Thrace.

Russia Accepts the British Demands and Withdraws

British Can Now Fish Outside the Three Mile Limit

LONDON, May 23.—Soviet Russia's second reply to the British ultimatum accepts the majority of the British demands and suggests the holding of a conference to consider the points in dispute. The Soviet expresses its readiness to conclude forthwith an agreement granting British citizens the right to fish outside the three mile limit off the Russian coasts, pending settlement by an International Convention of the extent of territorial waters. The Soviet Government says it is ready to pay compensation for the seizure of British trawlers and for the execution of Charles F. Davidson and the arrest and detention of Mrs. Stan Harding, a newspaper correspondent, but it refuses to recognize that there was any irregularity in the measures taken against "these spies." It offers to withdraw the two Weinstein notes written in reply to the British protests over the prosecution of high Church officials, which notes the British considered offensive. The Soviet Government is ready to riterats undertakings of the trade agreement provided Great Britain makes similar undertakings. It is also ready to investigate friendly representations regarding alleged infringement of the trade agreement on a basis of reciprocity. The note generally sets forth that the consequences possible from the breaking of relations have caused the Russian Government serious apprehension and that it is to avoid such results that the Soviet is willing to make these new concessions.

LATEST Wants Straits Dammed and So No More Ice

ROME, May 25.—An Ecumenical Council will be convoked by the Vatican on the occasion of the holy year of jubilee, 1925, according to a reliable report in Vatican circles. This will be the twentieth council in the history of the Church, the last one being in 1870, and the first one in 325 A.D.

All the archbishops and bishops in the world participate in these general church councils.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The Spanish Royal Mail steamship line, operating between Barcelona and New York, has ordered the discontinuance of all United States sailings, because of the recent United States Supreme Court ruling forbidding foreign vessels bringing liquor into the United States territorial limits.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—It was given out at the treasury yesterday that the new liquor regulations being framed because of the recent Supreme Court ruling, would not conflict with international laws, because advantage could be taken of the medicinal clause of the Volstead Act, that where foreign ships carry rations liquor for crews, these could be allowed inside the three-mile limit if placed in the custody of the ship's doctor.

NEW YORK, May 25.—The liner Homeric, arriving yesterday from England, brought five million dollars in English gold to J. P. Morgan & Co., for the British government account.

SYDNEY, May 25.—Joseph Handrigan and Don McDougall were killed by a heavy fall of stone in No. 14 colliery at New Waterford late last night. Both men were married with large families.

SYDNEY, May 25.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of James McDougall McDonald, an electrician, who has been missing since April 20th, cleared up to-day when carpenters found the body on the roof of the power house at the Besco Steel Plant. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict of death by accidental electrocution.

ADVERTISE IN THE EVENING ADVOCATE

The Editor of The Advocate:—

Fifty ships have been floating helplessly around in the ice in the vicinity of Cabot Strait for several weeks. What an unprecedented economic loss! If a dam were built across the Straits of Belle Isle, the Gulf Stream would have a chance to nose its way towards the Gulf of St. Lawrence and this annual calamity would not happen. There must be an enormous accumulation of cinders, clinkers, slag & etc., every spring in the cities and towns on the St. Lawrence River and Gulf which could be used to good advantage for this work. One would think that the Canadian Government could arrange with many of the steamers that use Belle Isle Straits in going to Europe, to have them deposit 500 to 1,000 tons of this material in the center of the narrowest part of the Straits, while en route on each trip, and thus, in the course of time, form an island. The operation could be repeated between this island and the main land on either hand till a barrier stretched from shore to shore. A lock could be constructed therein for the passage of ships in summer. The Labrador current flowing down through the Strait would be stopped and the Gulf would be no longer clogged with vast floes of ice. There might still be some drift ice in the spring but this would be only local and the amount would be infinitesimal compared with the present quality. If the icy Arctic current were shut off Cape Breton would be embraced by a warm current which would flow through the Strait of Canso on the west and another to the north east which would impinge on the southern coast of Newfoundland, part going through Cabot Strait and part severing eastward towards St. John's. Thus the waters of the Gulf would be warmed and the great expense now incurred by the government for ice-breakers, etc., would be done away with or reduced to a minimum. Moreover, fogs would be eliminated to a great extent, Northumberland Strait would remain open water and the dangers to navigation would be appreciably diminished. Montreal, Quebec and all cities and towns on the River and Gulf of St. Lawrence would boom to an extraordinary extent and the Provinces of Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and the western and southern portion of Newfoundland would enjoy a prolonged summer season and a much earlier spring and the rise in the value of farm lands and real estate generally would be incalculable. It is true it would become rather hot for us Yankees in the Atlantic States but we could obviate that by emigrating to Canada and Newfoundland.

LONDON, May 23.—Sir Robert Horne Chancellor of the Exchequer in the late Lloyd George Cabinet, has declined to accept the Chancellorship of the Exchequer in the new Cabinet.

The Red Flag

ESSEN, May 24.—Communists have taken possession of police headquarters at Gelsenkirchen and have hoisted the red flag over the building. Reports from German sources say that five persons have been fighting for possession of the building. The struggle began late last night and lasted until early this morning.

Holiday Strikes

SYDNEY, May 23.—The rumor that the miners of district twenty-six were contemplating a series of holiday strikes as a protest against the presence in Cape Breton of Provincial Police, and also in support of their demand for return of the 1921 wage scale was confirmed this afternoon by J. B. McLachlan, Secretary of the district. Two or three holidays a week is the scheme now being considered by the locals.

The Blood Feud OR Love's Renunciation

CHAPTER III.
The Sands of Ay.

"Yes. Somewhere in eternity this day is registered for you and me."

Carlotta did not know herself, nor had she any control over her tongue in the usual sense. Yet she was not a babbler, nor one who would complicate life in any of its relations by foolish speech. It but added to her charm, since all men sooner or later weary of the babbling brook, murmuring to all eternity.

"It is eight days since we met," he said, in a low, eager voice. "Did you remember how long it was?"

"Yes, and I have been thinking of you all these sad days. I was there when you laid him to rest. Did you know?"

He shook his head.

"I did not know, though I ought. But that is the day which blots other things from a man's heart and life. There has been nothing like it seen in Alloway for generations. My father was not a great man—there were even some who called him a foolish one—but to have awakened affection in so many hearts was, surely, to have lived!"

"The life of the heart!—it is worth all else," said Carlotta musingly, for the glow of passion, spent at the moment of meeting, was followed by a deepening quiet. "It moved me to tears—and yet I was glad for your sake. How could one be sad on such a day? It was all glory to have lived and loved as he did, and then to pass on! It is what ought to be."

"In Stair there is only one to follow him, and that is Judy," said Rankine, with a touch of gloom.

"The qualities which made my father great are not of this generation."

"She is very wonderful, I know," said Carlotta; "and it is because she has been a burden-bearer. She is very simple and dear, as are all those who do the big things in life. Rankine felt himself oddly moved, as a man may when he hears his mother's name, or realizes in his own soul the secret of the springs of being.

They walked on in silence, not noticing how the beach was narrowing, and how near they were approaching to the frowning Heads of Ay.

"Carlotta," said Alan Rankine suddenly, and with a touch of passion, "you will never go to The Lees as Peter Garvock's wife!"

She lifted her eyes to his with a still, wondering look. She did not know how or why, but Peter Garvock had just drifted out of her life, quietly, effectually, as the hulk of an old cable, drifting with the ebb tide, is lost to view!

"No; I will never go to The Lees as Peter Garvock's wife—there is nothing surer than that."

"Say now that you will come to Stair, one day, as my wife—that there is nothing surer than that?" he said, and stood still on the firm wet sand, compelling her with his eyes.

She shook her head, and watched with eyes that saw not, the flight of a sea-gull, its graceful dip to the sun-kissed waves.

"That I cannot say—at least yet; for there is a long road to travel first."

Suddenly her eyes became dark with pain, and she stamped a passionate foot on the sand.

"Now why—now why is life so cruel? Why could you not have come at Christmas instead of Easter? Why did I not meet you instead of Peter Garvock?"

"God knows! But I want to hear how and why Peter won your promise?"

The color flamed in her cheeks.

"I am ashamed to tell you, who will never understand, for there is no money-sense at Stair. I have had that dinner into my ears ever since I heard the name."

"There are other things besides the money-sense. It would never have brought that stupendous crowd to Alloway Kirk last Tuesday," said Rankine quickly.

"No, no!—don't I know? I was base, but I was tempted and I fell. You think you have known poverty, but you do not know the grinding, sordid kind of poverty such as ours is; the scheming and planning to make ends meet, to keep the family head out of the dust! Then—" and here she lifted her head with an odd, proud gesture of defiance.

"I wanted to have my revenge on all these horrid people who have snubbed and belittled me since I came to this place."

"And poor Peter was to have been the scapegoat," murmured Stair, with infinite compassion.

Right to her eyes sprang two swift, hot tears.

"Forgive me!" she said softly, and with an adorable glance which might well have banished his self-control. "But you are not angry. One is not angry with the child who knows nothing. And how, not having met you, could I know?"

He almost groaned in spirit. It is honor we are talking about, Carlotta; but in this case what are we to do?"

"Listen, my dear—"

She called him "my dear" as if she were his mother.

"I never should have married Peter Garvock! I was learning is more convincingly every day. Something else would have happened, if not you. Not three days after I gave him my promise I felt myself drawing back. It is his own fault that he feels so sure."

"That will not serve for Peter when he knows," said Alan Rankine with the utmost gloom.

She shivered slightly, and put another fold of her scarf about her throat.

Suddenly her wild eyes grew pit-ous.

"I am afraid of Peter Garvock. He is a hard man even in the things he calls love. And so jealous! He hates even the attention I give to my own people. Life with him would be terrible. It is peace the human heart needs, even more than happiness, and how is it ever to be ours, supposing we should—we should—supposing I should come to Stair?"

"Listen, Carlotta. The thing which has come to you and me is so wonderful that nothing else matters. We have met, and we love one another. Is that not so?"

She bowed her head.

"When I came into the room that day the whole world seemed to change for me—"

"And for me," put in Carlotta swiftly. "My heart stood still, then all the blood rushed to it, and the room whirled, and there was only you."

"We belong to one another. But we shall have to walk warily."

"Apart," she said, with the swift petulance of a child, "apart for ever more."

"No, by heaven, not apart, but together. But how it is going to be done I know not. Who will tell Peter?"

"Why, I will tell him, of course. It is I, not you, who have wronged him. That he persecuted me into a promise does not lessen the sum on my dishonor. My heart was never colder to him than at the moment when I promised to marry him. And when I told him it must be soon or never, he might have guessed."

"I know my cousin's temper," said Rankine, gloomily once more. It is high and hasty, and vindictive, too. He will never forgive me; and it is me he will blame to the day of doom. I will take the blame gladly, Carlotta. I will tell Peter to-day, though it will be a sorry Sunday's work."

She shook a decisive head.

"I forbid you. This thing is mine, and we must part here until—until—or perhaps, for ever."

They were utterly alone there, in a vast solitude, companioned only by the sea and the living things which haunt its shores.

THIRTY-FIVE HUNDRED CHILDREN HEAR EMPIRE DAY SPEECHES FROM GOVERNOR AND PREMIER

Government House grounds presented an inspiring scene of Wednesday afternoon when more than 3500 children from the various city schools attended there to hear patriotic addresses by His Excellency the Governor and the Prime Minister.

The children marched in procession from their respective schools, accompanied by their teachers, while the Girl Guides, the Spenser Guides, the Methodist College girls, the College Company of the C.I.B., the Salvation Army girls and the Boy Scouts paraded in uniform.

The forming up of the different units in the grounds was in the capable hands of Colonel Rendell, who placed the entire body of school boys and girls in a square, in the centre of which was a dais from which the speakers delivered their addresses.

We would suggest on another occasion that a special effort be made to have all the youngest scholars in front, as a gathering of this kind is worth more to them, perhaps, than to anyone.

Following the speeches of the Governor and the Prime Minister, the pupils of each school left the grounds in procession, marching past the Governor and party who stood at the edge of the drive leading out of the grounds. As they passed, the children appropriately saluted the representative of His Gracious Majesty the King. They were present their Excellencies, Sir William and Lady Allardice, Sir Richard and Lady Squires, Miss Vita Allardice, Mr. V. P. Burke, Deputy Minister of Education, Major Wilberforce-Bell and Capt. Goodfellow.

Dr. Burke was in charge of the arrangements and in opening the proceedings regretted the absence of His Worship, Mayor Cook, who through press of business was unable to be present.

Dr. Burke then introduced His Excellency the Governor, who was accorded a splendid reception, and who spoke as follows:

Speech of His Excellency Sir William Allardice, K.C.M.G.
We are gathered here this afternoon to commemorate Empire Day, also called Victoria Day, after Her late Majesty of blessed memory, one of the greatest of Queens, and the most perfect of women, during whose reign, illustrious and beneficent reign huge populations and vast territories passed under her sway. Since then further additions have been made, and to-day more than 425,000,000 people own allegiance to King George the Fifth, and the British Empire includes more than one fifth of the earth's land surface. Is it not splendid and satisfying to know, and does it not make one proud to think this Empire, the richest, the most populous, the most extensive, the greatest the world has ever seen is British, and that you and I as Britishers are part owners of this wonderful heritage?

Surely then, it is but right and proper that once a year we should hold an Empire Day commemoration or celebration, not with pride, or boastfulness, or vain-glory, but in a spirit of humility befitting the ownership of such a unique possession, remembering that from those to whom much is given, much is expected. The founder of the Empire movement, Lord Meath, has summed up its object as follows:

"It is intended that the Empire celebration shall be the outward sign of an inner awakening of the people who constitute the British Empire, to the serious duties which lie at their door."

We must not be forgetful of the teachings of history which show that earlier Empires disappeared in great measure because they substituted duty to luxury, ease, and the craving after pleasure.

Of our immense population a little more than 60,000,000 are white. By far the greater portion are alien to us in color, alien in religion, alien both in thought and language. How is it then, that we happen to be bound together? The answer is, "It is in a great measure the home of grateful races that have flock ed together under the Union Jack." Should this be the correct answer, then our Empire must stand for an ideal. What is the ideal? The great Chatham, that far-seeing Empire-builder, aimed at an expansion of England and the building of a colonial supremacy by which his native land, the native land of our parents and forefathers, could display her moral as well as her material greatness.

Our Empire has, as a whole, been built on the broad principles of freedom, justice, and liberty, and the Empire Day movement stands for these ideals. Its watchwords are: "Responsibility, Duty, Sympathy, Self-sacrifice;" its motto is: "One King, one flag, one fleet, one Empire."

Think of it, One Flag, the dear old Red, White, and Blue. Red for courage, white for purity, blue for loyalty and truth; and then there is the cross in the centre of the flag, and you all know what it is the symbol of, and what it stands for.

Girls and boys, what more is required than this? This is a creed that all can accept, that all can try to live up to. If you are true to these you will uphold our best British traditions, you will carry out the Great Chatham's idea of perpetuating our moral greatness, and you will, one and all, each in your individual sphere, become an Empire builder, called to its service by the Empire Movement rallying cry, "For God, duty and Empire."

The Prime Minister, Sir Richard Squires was the next speaker, and as he mounted the dais in the centre of the square, the children gave him an enthusiastic and spontaneous welcome. Sir Richard addressed the children as the future men and women of Newfoundland and as such the future citizens of the great British Empire of which we are an integral part.

It must have been pleasing, he said to his Excellency the Governor, to have this opportunity of addressing the children of St. John's, and through them, the children of the outposts, on the eve of Empire Day. The children of to-day, he said, the Empire of to-morrow, and no matter how great the Empire may be in other respects, the education of the children was the most important work in the strengthening of the Empire. The teachers, said the Prime Minister, are the most vitally important figures in the country or in the Empire. They are more important than the politicians, more important than the professional men and women, more important than any others in the community, because in their hands is the onerous duty of training the future men and women of the country, and on that training depends a great deal more than is generally considered. No matter how we may talk of the greatness of the Empire, the education of the Empire's children was the greatest responsibility that we have, for without proper education there can be no greatness.

Newfoundland, like other countries, can be as great as her citizens, and Newfoundland will deal with them as they deal with her. Newfoundland in the days to come will be able to offer every boy and girl in the whole island a living and a good living, in their own homes, and it behooved each and every one of them to always keep that in mind and to fit themselves to better, not other countries, but their own, by making the best use of the educational opportunities that are now theirs. Newfoundlanders have made good in every land to which they have gone, and there is no reason why they cannot make good at home. If one visits London he finds there foremost amongst the medical profession, a Newfoundland. Go to Paris or London and you find in charge of the leading banking institutions there, Newfoundland trained men. Go to Western Canada, and in one of the biggest universities there, is a Canadian boy, foremost in the field of science and scientific research. In the United States Newfoundlanders have taken a foremost place in almost every sphere of activity. What Newfoundlanders have done abroad they can do at home if they are but given the chance, and that chance will be theirs in the future.

In conclusion, the Prime Minister thanked the Educational Authorities for the opportunity that had been afforded him to extend to the children of St. John's and of the Country, Empire Greetings.

At the conclusion of the Prime Minister's address, Prof. Hutton conducted the singing of the National Anthem.

Slight Fire

At 1:30 p.m. Wednesday a fire occurred at the residence of Mr. Stephen Halfyard, Will's Range, which brought the Western and Central fire companies to the scene.

Some damage was caused before the blaze was gotten under control, but after fifteen minutes, the "all-out" was sent in.

Mr. Halfyard has his furniture and effects insured for $700 and the house was owned by Mr. F.C. Willis.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, FRIDAY, MAY 25th., 1923.

The Opposition Leadership

It is now practically certain that the leader of the Opposition in the House of Assembly during the coming session and during subsequent sessions also will be Sir Michael Cashin. This, of course, is in accordance with the program mapped out by Sir Michael when he consented, or rather decided, to go to the country under the leadership of Mr. Bennett. When Sir Michael took that step he was fully decided that when his party came back, whether it be as the Government or as the Opposition, he would lead it. That was partly why Sir Michael Cashin forced Mr. Bennett out of the district he had represented for nearly thirty years and sent him to a district where he was not known.

Sir Michael Cashin, by taking Mr. Bennett's seat in St. John's West left his old constituency free for his son Peter, who, as is well known, could no more win a seat on his own merits in any other district than he could attain to the premiership. Thus by freeing Mr. Bennett out of St. John's, Sir Michael secured a seat for himself and another for his son, while the pseudo-leader of the party goes a-begging.

While it is entirely a matter for the elected Opposition what they may do with their safe seats and with their defeated leader, the public cannot but remark on the lack of manliness displayed by the Cashin element in the Tory bunch in continuing to hold down the two constituencies, one of which rightly belongs to Mr. Bennett. It is corded by the supporters of the Opposition Party that it is nothing short of a public scandal that Sir Michael Cashin's son, Peter, should remain in his seat in the House, a seat which he only secured by the sacrifice of Mr. Bennett, while that gentleman, leader of the party and all as he was, and after his thirty years in the House, should be refused the bare courtesy which, from time immemorial has been extended in the case of the leader of a political party who has failed to win his seat.

On the other hand, if Sir Michael Cashin was as anxious as he pretends to be to save his bleeding country, he must be aware that a man of Mr. Bennett's experience, knowledge, ability, and standing in the community, is infinitely to be desired in the House of Assembly and in the ranks of the Opposition to his son, Peter, whose influence as a parliamentarian does not give promise of being far-reaching. There is no gainsaying the fact that if there was a spark of spirit in the whole Opposition make-up, steps would have been taken ere this to provide Mr. Bennett with a seat, and, as there are three in the gift of the Cashin family, it would seem the duty of the Cashin family to give up one of them to the man from whom one of them was filched.

But is there a spark of spirit in the Opposition ranks? During the past three sessions of the House, some of the Opposition members, men who are again back with the old gang, were wont to refer to the fishermen's representatives as "shipped men." The only ground they had for so designating the representatives of Northern constituencies was that they represented the Fishermen, thousands of whom were and are members of that great organization, the Fishermen's protective Union. In the minds of many, if not all the Opposition men, the common people, the ordinary workers and fishermen, have no right to place one of their own kind in the House to look after their interests, and hence, when the fishermen, disregarding the snobocracy so dear to the hearts of gentlemen of Tory persuasion, put men of their own kind, in the House to represent them, these fishermen are insultingly referred to by the "scions of nobility" as hired men.

Now a situation arises which is to prove whether the members of the Opposition are "shipped men," independent men or men owned body and soul by the monied and autocratic Cashin. What will be the result? Is there a man in the Opposition with the temerity to tell Cashin where his duty lies? Will Mr. Higgins do it? Will Mr. Walsh do it?

Will Mr. Woodford do it? We think not. All these gentlemen may prate as much as they like about others being shipped men, but we have an idea that to them "the crack of the whip" has a great deal more meaning, and the term "shipped men" a great deal more significance than they ever had or will have for the representatives of Northern Districts.

Sir Michael Cashin is well aware that to give Mr. Bennett a seat would also mean that he would have to abdicate the leader's chair in his favor and this he has no intention of doing. He had meant to be leader of the Government, but, since that is impossible, he will again lead the Opposition and, so far as he or his following are concerned, the man who, by all the ethics of decent politics, should have a seat in the House and be the leader of the party at whose head he went to the Country, may go to Hong Kong.

Decidedly, when the Opposition members talk of "shipped men" they know whereof they speak.

ROYAL MESSAGES TO THE CHILDREN OF NEWFOUNDLAND

Following are the messages from Their Majesties to the Children of the Empire on the occasion of Empire Day. These messages are simple, to the point, and are in keeping with the best traditions of Royalty, which ever draw attention to the fact that "Kind Hearts are more than Coronets, And Simple Faith than Norman Blood." We recommend that Teachers everywhere read the messages to their schools, and we print them in such a way as they can be framed and hung in a prominent place in the School-room.

THE KING'S MESSAGE.

To the Children in the Elementary Schools of the Empire.

On this day My People in all parts of the world join to celebrate their unity and to draw closer the common ties which hold them together.

Each of our many peoples has its own life to live, each has its own work to do; yet all are members of one family, sharing their sorrows and joys.

You have learned how the Empire was built up by brave and wise men and women in the past. It is only by courage, wisdom and unselfishness that it will endure. It is a great inheritance. Your fathers and forefathers made it. Its future welfare and good name are, under the Providence of God, in your hands.

Do not think of it as a thing far away from you. Every one of you counts, and what you do and learn now will decide how far you will be able to play your part worthily when you grow up.

Get knowledge, be brave, honourable and kind, thinking of others before yourselves, and always play the game. So will you fit yourselves to hand down this community of Free Nations to your children and grand-children as a great instrument for justice, peace and goodwill, which will deserve the respect and esteem of mankind.

THE QUEEN'S MESSAGE.

To the Girls in the Elementary Schools of the Empire.

On this day of memory and hope, which is also the birthday of good Queen Victoria, this is my message to you, the daughters of our world-wide family of nations and peoples.

Think always of what you can do to make your homes happy and how you can best prepare yourselves to make happy homes for the generations of children which will follow you. In our vast Empire there are many kinds of homes and many different customs. The home which fosters clean minds and kind hearts is God's Temple, and the spirit of the good home, whether it be rich or poor, is one of the best things in the world. You can learn many lessons at school which will help you to become wise and useful citizens of the British Commonwealth; but you can learn and practise nothing better for yourselves and all members of the great British family than the simple lessons of love, kindness and unselfishness which in cloud or sunshine are the strength and beauty of life.

U. S. SENATE AND WORLD COURT

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(By Canadian Press)—Lord Robert Cecil gives promise of figuring much in the debate which is ahead in the U.S. Senate over the world court.

It is an old practice of politicians when they want to arouse the public against any given proposition, to hunt about for a bogey man with which to frighten the voters. Some symptoms are visible that Lord Robert is to be used as the bogey man by the opponents of the Harding-Hughes world court plan and those who insist that entrance into the court synonymous with entering the League of Nations.

From Lord Robert's recent tour during which he attempted to explain to the people of the United States what the League of Nations is seeking to accomplish, has arisen the charge by the opponents of the world court plan, especially the old irreconcilables against the League, that the present plan for the United States to enter the world court really originated abroad in the minds of Lord Robert and other leaders of the League movement. This, of course, is denied by the advocates of the court with the Hughes reservations, but there is little question much of the discussion as to whether this country should go into the court will center about the charge that the movement to get the U.S. into the tribunal originated with League leaders in Europe.

Senators hostile to the world court plan predict that if this can be established, the Senate will not ratify it, despite the fact that the advocates of the court thus far have been highly confident of ratification.

Loss of the S.s. 'Marvale'

Struck Cape Freels Rock May 21st, Bound From Montreal to Liverpool.

The "Marvale," once the "Corsican," her sailing days are numbered. Upon a wild and treacherous coast she lies beneath the deep. Where many a stout and stately ship for many years has slumbered; Near Cape Freels Rock the "Marvale" now is taking her last sleep.

All you who know the terrors of the broad and blue Atlantic, The moaning of the billows and the sea gulls' shrieking mock, Can judge the grief experienced, in magnitude gigantic, When an ocean liner crashes 'gainst an adamant rock.

The heaving waves around her they were furiously dashing, Thick fog also, and not a ray from the bright sun was shed, And silvery sprays against her sides likewise were madly splashing; The ocean lay behind her and a rocky coast ahead.

It was on the twenty-first of May the "Marvale's" days were ended, On Monday in the afternoon, the hour was half past four, Wafted by the fickle fates, where many a ship had wended, She's lying now beneath the waves, 'bout three miles from the shore.

With a cargo now of grain and flour the gallant ship was laden, Two hundred and odd passengers she had on board as well, Men brave and bold, both young and old, and many a comely maiden And all were saved, to-day we're glad the happy news to tell.

It took only twenty minutes when the ship's boats were commanded Their prows were pointed to the shore by hardy seamen brave; It wasn't long when at St. Shott's her passengers were landed, By God's good-will and British skill snatched from a watery grave.

The people who reside there can recount the many dangers, Sad scenes of desolation which oft come before their view; They did the very best they could to help the shipwrecked strangers Who pray that God may bless them, for they did all they could do.

The "Marvale's" crew and passengers they all should be commended They acted in a manner most courageous and most cool, The actions of the captain and the officers were splendid.

When the big ship struck at Cape Freels Rock on her voyage to Liverpool.

The Liberal Party Fought a Clean Fight

(Bay Roberts Guardian)

The Telegram of May 12, in an editorial article headed "A Rotten Foundation," makes certain references to the Squires Government and political happenings in this district that calls for some comment from us.

The Telegram, if it knew the least thing about actual Opposition propaganda and tactics, in this District, would, if it were honestly endeavouring to do its "duty," be the first to condemn in the strongest possible manner some of the miserable and dirty tactics pursued by the Opposition both in reference to rowdiness and sectarianism, which helped to bring about the defeat of its party.

But instead of doing this the Telegram would like to convey the impression to the general public that the Liberal Party won the election in the District of Harbor Grace by "trickery" and a "sectarian appeal." We characterize such statements as false.

Look at your own Party and its leading supporters, including the candidates, and if you are honestly trying to do your "duty" you will find all the things you complain of right near your own doors. Those who live in glass houses should never throw stones.

Ask the Leader of the Opposition Party, and he will be very likely to tell the "truth" concerning his defeat in Harbor Grace.

No Editors There

The Prison Mirror, a newspaper printed within the walls of a penitentiary in Minnesota, is being conducted under great difficulties. There is not an editor in the roll of guests. "Why is it," says an article in the Mirror, "that from the first inception of our paper up to the present time we have never had an editor to sojourn in our midst? Other professions have been well represented. Of teachers we have had enough to furnish su-

If Mr. Bennett is not inclined to oblige you, try Mr. Hickman, the gentleman who was trying to bluff supporters of his Party by suggesting that he knew nothing about the offer made to C. E. Russell to try to get him to step aside in favor of A. E. Hickman and be false to the people. In fact, we are told he even threatened to take action against Russell. But then that was just a little while before polling day.

If neither of these gentlemen cares to enlighten the Editorial genius of The Telegram, Mr. Archibald, we are certain, will be only too glad to do so. And if Frank will be frank enough he will tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. And to quote The Telegram, "Truth is mighty and it will prevail." If all should fail, then we ourselves will do our "duty" and tell the Telegram that the Opposition failed in this District because the people decided that they would not accept the dictation of J. R. Bennett, A. E. Hickman, J. C. Crossie or any other man. Nor were they prepared to be bullied or bought.

The Opposition failed because a majority of the electors decided to support a policy of industrial development which Sir Richard Squires was successful in arranging.

Mrs. C. McKay Harvey Scores Artistic Success

The entertainment held at the Majestic Theatre last night in aid of the Girl Guides was attended by a capacity audience which included His Excellency and Lady Allard, who were accompanied by their full suite. The programme consisted of tableaux which were presented with charming grace which reflected great credit on the performers, who must have spent considerable time and care in preparation. To Mrs. C. McKay Harvey, who organized the entertainment, which was an artistic triumph, a great deal of praise is due. Only the expenditure of tremendous effort could have evolved such a programme and made it the complete success that it was; and Mrs. Harvey is certainly to be complimented on providing an entertainment that was novel as well as entertaining. Representatives from the different companies of Guides capably carried out the duties of ushers and also disposed of a considerable amount of candy. The tableaux were of unique design, embodying charm and grace in every spectacular. During the evening selections were rendered by the Orchestra composed of the following under the direction of Mr. F. Bradshaw:—

Piano, Miss Rennie; First Violins, Miss Power, L. M. Marshall; Second Violins, F. Burley, A. E. Chown; Viola, Mrs. E. Mews; Cello, Mrs. McNeill; Cornet, J. Skinner; Saxophone, G. Bishop. The entire list of tableaux is as follows:—
"Bubbles," Miss Barbara Winter; "The Wall-flower," Miss Phyllis Warren; Miss Margaret Baird, Miss Margaret Parsons, Master Alex. Crossie, Master Gerald Winter; "Our Youngest Stars in their Summer Bonnets," Miss Margaret Baird, Miss Gordon Baird, Miss Mary McNeily, Miss Marjorie Young; "If Winter Comes," Miss Barbara Winter; "Salome," Miss Vera Sullivan; "The Wishing Moon," Miss Florence Reid; "A Soldier's Return," Miss Allard, Mr. Edgar Bowring; "Fate," Mrs. Warren; "Aragone de son espoir," Miss Jean Campbell, Miss Gertrude Miller; Scene from "Fringing Gods," Miss Edith Cleary, Mr. Ronald Martin; Statues, Miss Ethel Johnson, Miss Olive Rennie; "Fresh Cod," Mrs. Enry Awkins; A Scene in London Street, Mr. William Sykes; "A Young Man's Fancy," Scene from the "Music Box," Miss Mary Doyle, Miss Mandy Gibb, Miss Jean Herder, Master Teddy Meaney; "The Centuries 14th to 20th," 14th Century, Miss Mary Syme; 15th Century, Miss Helen Reid; 16th Century, Miss Constance Crane; 17th Century, Miss Mary Rendell; 18th Century, Miss Vera Crossie; 19th Century, Miss Sheila Ayres; 20th Century, Miss Emma Macpherson; "Our At Home Day," Mrs. Herbert Outerbridge, Mrs. Hugh LeMessurier, Mrs. Cheshire. A song by Mrs. H. D. Reid was very enjoyable and won hearty applause.

Earl and Girl in Blissful Meeting

Northesk Arrives in N. Y. To Wed Cabaret Dancing Girl.

NEW YORK, May 17.—David, Earl of Northesk, who won a promise of marriage from Jessica Brown, cabaret dancer, because she thought him "a regular fellow," arrived yesterday on the Olympic hoping for an early wedding to the "grandest girl in the world."

Jessica, who ended a dancing engagement in London in March and returned to her home in Buffalo to plan a gorgeous wedding with all kinds of thrills, was at the foot of the gang plank, all a-flutter when the Olympic docked 36 hours late.

Northesk, dashing member of an old Scottish family, appeared quite all Miss Brown said he was, a strapping fellow, one of London's star football players, and until recently a second lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards. He resigned his commission for Miss Brown's sake.

"I suppose," he said, "that you would call it a romance. With a party of friends, I went to Grafton's Galleries in London, in January. Miss Brown was dancing there. I went again the next night and the next after that, and finally Miss Brown was introduced into the party."

"She surely is a fine girl. I really don't know how we became engaged. Just happened, that's all. I'm glad Miss Brown thinks I'm a regular fellow. Some people think a fellow can't be human with a handle to his name. The handle doesn't bother me."

When Northesk came down the gang plank, thrusting aside slow moving passengers, Miss Brown jumped into his arms. Somewhat flushed, he kissed her and then they hurried to the other side of the pier. After he had cleared his baggage they jumped into an automobile and instructed the driver to "drive anywhere." They wanted to talk over wedding plans.

Northesk probably will stay in New York a day or two before going to Buffalo. He was accompanied to New York by John F. C. Ogle, a comrade who will be best man.

Gold Expedition Ready to Embark

EXPECT TO FIND "DIRT" IN PAYING QUANTITIES IN MONTHS

HALIFAX, N.S., May 12.—The lure of gold is again beckoning men to the barren stretches of North Labrador. Rumors of an eastern Klondike that obliterates the trail of '98 will either be confirmed or dispelled when a sturdy little steamer named the "Petrel" again pokes its nose again into Halifax harbor and that is now completing preparations reports the result of an expedition to search out the yellow rainbow's end.

Chartered from the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, the "Petrel" will sail on May 19 for the coast of North Labrador. On board will be a party of seven, headed by M. Ogilvie, mining engineer, of Ottawa, with a captain and crew of 22. Ogilvie, a veteran of every gold rush in the last quarter of a century—in Klondike, British Columbia and elsewhere—and a man who is not merely a prospector, but a skilled mining engineer, declares gold is to be found in the rivers of Labrador. The problem is not one of finding pay color, but enough pay dirt to make profitable commercial exploration.

The party is outfitted with all the machinery and equipment necessary to make thorough tests of gold in sufficient quantities to send the mints delirious.

It is no holiday jaunt. The country to which the expedition is going is sterile, biting cold, and for eight months of the year isolated from the rest of the world. A rush there before gold is discovered in quantities would end in tragedy.

The Petrel will sail in ten days from St. John's, Nfld., and wait till northern navigation is possible. Then the assault on Labrador's secret will be launched.

It will be October at least before the expedition is able to send back even a preliminary report. Adventures are accordingly warned that there need be no rush over packing.

NO ACCIDENT WEEK

Le Canada: Next week is No Accident Week. This, therefore, is a propitious moment to renew recommendations for caution to children and to all, whether citizens or strangers, who can contribute to an accident. Time should be devoted to this burning question in the schools; teachers could lecture shortly and simply to their pupils, pointing out the dangers of the street and the way to avoid the unhappy accidents which day by day are reported.

THE INQUISITIVE KIDDE.

(For "Brumie.")

My youngest son is of a most inquiring turn of mind, And answers to the questions it most puzzles me to find. We started in the car one day; with anger I turned red— The passengers all laughed aloud, as my young kiddie said:

"Have you spent the tuppence mother gave you.

Ain't that lady's face like our dog Nell?"

Why is it you're always wearing whiskers.

And mother never does? please daddy tell.

Is it true that we all come from monkeys?

When I look at you it must be so, But, if you are a monkey, where's your tail gone?

Eh, dad? don't you know?"

We had a supper party, and I let the kid sit up.

He promised that he wouldn't speak a word. The little pup!

But, later on, the rascal, he for knowledge seemed to thirst.

In front of all the guests we had these questions on me burst:

"Will these people here eat all the food up?

Ain't they had no dinner for a week? Is that the suit that mother fetched from uncle's?

And what is all that red stuff on her cheek?

Where did mother first discover you, Was it in a Barnum-Bailey show?

And how did you become my 'kittle daddy'?

Eh, dad? Don't you know?

My daughter Jane has been on the shelf for years.

But at last has found a jay, So to see her married, we all went to church today.

That darned kid started talking, tho' I tried to chuck him out;

He got beneath the family pew and commenced to shout:

"Does he know that sister Jane's a fake one?

Does he know he's met an awful fate? Does he know that mother's going to live with them,

Just to see that things are going straight? And does he know that sister's leg's a cork one?

I wonder if she ever told him so? And if he finds it out, do you think he'll want his money back?

Eh, dad? Don't you know?"

My sister Mary has tons of £ s d,

So in her will the other day she left the lot to me;

But since I took the kid around, I'm cut off with a bob.

He looked at Sister Mary and commenced to sob.

"Is that funny thing my Auntie Mary? Do they ever use her for a guy?

And is it true she talks through her big nose To save her teeth from wearing out or why?

And is it true she'll leave us all her money.

When she kicks the pail and goes below?

And is it true you're going to grease the stairs, Dad?

Eh, dad? Don't you know?"

MODERN JOURNALISM IS INTOLERABLE NUISANCE

NORTHCLIFFE'S DIARY, HOWEVER DOES NOT OFFER ANY ALTERATIONS.

LONDON, May 11.—Perhaps the most striking thing in the Lord Northcliffe's diary from his last long journey on earth which was published today, is that he discovered that modern journalism, with its sleuth interviews and reporters, is an intolerable nuisance. He mentions reporters invading his private rooms on land and outraging his privacy at sea by wireless communication. He expressed himself quite warmly at their notion that he would be delighted to see them.

At the same time the diary does not contain anything that would lead to the belief that Lord Northcliffe made any resolutions to use his influence towards altering this trend of journalism.

The book, as a whole, as the author confesses, is jerky in style. However, it is none the less vivid on that account. One notable phrase in it is this: "I have been away five and a half months, almost the longest time I have ever been from England. I had no idea how much I did not know."

Details of the Abbey Service

On the occasion of the marriage in Westminster Abbey of the Duke of York with Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, the Dean of Westminster will read the preface or exhortation; the Archbishop of Canterbury will perform the actual marriage service; the Precentor (Minor Canon L. H. Nixon) will sing the Versicles, Lord's Prayer, and Responses; and the Archbishop of York will deliver the address. The Primus of Scotland and the Abbey clergy will be the only robed clergy present in addition to those named.

The music chosen includes some of the selections made for Princess Mary's wedding. While the congregation is assembling the organist will play Parry's Suite, the Andante and Minuet from the Sonata in C sharp minor by Basil Harwood, the Minuet from "Berenice" by Handel, and the "Benediction Nuptiale" by Saint-Saens. While the King walks in procession to his appointed place the organist will play Elgar's Imperial March, and for the bridegroom's procession he will play Parry's Bridal March.

When the bride arrives at the Abbey escorted by her father, the Earl of Strathmore, the bridal procession will be preceded by the choir, singing the hymn "Lead us, Heavenly Father, lead us."

When the bride and bridegroom have arrived before the altar the beth Angela Marguerite." The choir exhortation. The Archbishop of Canterbury will then perform the actual marriage service uniting "Albert Frederick Arthur George and Elizabeth Angela Marguerite." The choir will sing afterwards in St. Wesley's church the psalm "God be merciful unto us and bless us." The Archbishop of York's address will be followed by the hymn "Praise, my soul, the King of Heaven" in the setting by Sir John Goss, and at the close the choir will sing Orlando Gibbons' "Amen."

The first verse of the National Anthem will then be sung, and afterwards the choir will sing the anthem which Mr. Nicholson, organist of the Abbey, composed for Princess Mary's wedding, "Beloved, let us love one another." The anthem includes three verses of a hymn by the late Bishop Creighton.

As the bride and bridegroom leave the Abbey the organist will play Mendelssohn's Wedding March and "Marcha Eroica," by Stanford—London Times, April 26.

BRUSSELS.—King Albert of Belgium now pilots his own airplane. His Majesty took the air the other day with his personal pilot as instructor and enjoyed the experience.

Billiards

The inter-Club billiard tournament between the Guards and the C.E.I. players was continued Wednesday night before a good attendance of friends and supporters of the respective clubs. In the first game W. Newbury, Guards, defeated F. James, C.E.I., by 123 points. The breaks were:

Newbury—300—11, 13, 12, 10, 12, 11, 13, 10, 12, 15, 23, 23—183.

James—172—15, 12, 10, 11—48.

The second game, between W. Thistle, Guards, and J. Wellman, C.E.I., was close and interesting, all the way through. Thistle won out by the narrow margin of 9 points. The result of the games played leaves the Guards with a comfortable lead over their opponents of 201 points. They have won five out of six games played to date, the only C.E.I. man they could not lick being Tommy Hallett.

The C. E. I. players are somewhat handicapped by the fact that they are playing on a table much faster than their own, and with slightly narrower pockets. The exciting part of the series is predicted when the second half of the schedule takes place in the C.E.I. rooms, commencing Tuesday next. The players for to-night will be W. Mercer, Guards, vs. S. Winsor, C. E. I., at 7 p.m., followed by H. J. Wyatt, Guards, vs. L. Hooley, C. E. I., at 9 o'clock.

Passengers leaving town on Saturday morning's 8.45 train will connect with S.S. Glencoe for usual ports of call to Port aux Basques.

Hospitality Is Shown by Club

A splendid spirit was shown in relation to billiards those of the S.S. "Marvale" by Mr. D. Nicholson, who, on behalf of St. Andrew's Club, promptly made arrangements to provide accommodation for 25 people at the Club Rooms. We understand also that Mr. J. J. McKay brought five of these stranded to his home. Acts like these are appreciated very much, and do credit to the hospitable feeling of our citizens.

So Say We All

Squires Government is again back into power and it is up to the Opposition, says the Twilligate Sun, to assist where possible so that our people can get along as best possible. To criticise, says the same paper, for mere opposition is unprofitable and whoever leads the Opposition party in the House, we hope for all concerned that all business will be gone thru with the welfare of the people ever before them.

Junior Football League

At a meeting of the various Associations interested in the formation of a Junior football league, last night the following officers were elected for the coming season:
President:—James Clancey, T.A.
Vice-President:—J. Mayo, Gower St. Boy Scouts.
Treasurer:—M. Foley, Star.
Secretary:—M. Power, Gaelic League.

It was decided that the age qualification should be 25 years or under, and that those who have taken part at any time in senior league matches be ineligible as players. A constitution modelled on that of the Nfld. Football League will be drawn up in the near future, and fixtures for the coming season arranged.

Half Proceeds For Survivors In Need

Mrs. C. McKay Harvey and her talented company have kindly consented to repeat the splendid performance which drew a capacity house last night at the Majestic Theatre so that half the proceeds may be given to those survivors of the wreck of the Marvale who are in need. The other half of the proceeds will go to the Girl Guide Association.

The whole entertainment is snappy and bright and through Mrs. Harvey's kindly thought many who could not find accommodation will now have the chance of seeing a really good show on which we cannot too warmly congratulate the organizer and her gifted workers.

K. of C. State Convention

The annual State Convention of the Knights of Columbus in Newfoundland was held at Bay Roberts yesterday, and matters in connection with the activities of the Order in Newfoundland were dealt with. The election of officers for the coming year was held and resulted as follows:

Cyril J. Cahill—State Deputy.
John G. Higgins—State Secretary.
William Maddigan Hr. Grace—State Treasurer.
W. T. Jones (Bav Roberts)—State Advocate.
A. G. Duggan (Grand Falls)—State Warden.
Rev. J. J. McGrath (Bell Island)—State Chaplain.
The delegates to the Supreme Convention which will be held in August were appointed—State Deputy C. J. Cahill and Past State Deputy Chas. J. Ellis being again chosen.

SHIPPING NOTES

The S. S. Alfred Noble left Bell Island on Wednesday for Sydney taking 8000 tons of iron ore.

The schooner Florence Swyers has cleared for Oporto with 3438 qrs. of codfish shipped by A. E. Hickman Co. Ltd.

The Portia left Conche this morning coming South having reached Quirpon.

The Seal left Grand Bank at 4 a.m. to-day.

The Furness Withy Co. received a wireless from the Dilby last evening saying that at noon the ship was 435 miles east of St. John's and is due here to-morrow morning.

The Canadian Sapper left Charlotte town Wednesday night and is due here to-morrow early.

The S.S. Home leaves Humbermouth Monday going as far as Port Saunders.

The Red Cross Liner Silvia opens her summer schedule leaving New York at noon to-morrow.

The S. S. Maple Dawn sailed for Montreal direct at 11 p.m. yesterday and leaves there on the 30th on the return trip.

Sable I. Sails

The S.S. Sable I., Capt. Murley, sailed for Halifax at 5 p.m. Wednesday. The ship took a full passenger list including a party of 41 stonemasons and carpenters en route for Bermuda where they have secured four months' employment at lucrative wages. Mr. P. Grace, of Harvey & Company, arranged their transportation, etc., and it is understood that another party will shortly be going south. Other outward passengers by the ship were: Jas. F. Russell, Joseph Waddell, William King, E. and Mrs. Coish, E. S. Best, S. Kink, Ed. Flight, Z. Moores, W. Thistle, F. Delaney, C. King, Mrs. W. Thistle, B. Friedman, A. Rennie, J. Mahon, Miss M. Henderson, Miss N. Lynch. On arrival at Halifax the Sable will undergo her annual inspection, afterwards taking up her summer service between Sydney and this port.

Man Lost Overboard

A message to the Assistant Collector of Customs, Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, received on Wednesday from Grand Bank, states that the schooner Ellen and Mary reported by wire from St. Pierre, the loss of one of her crew named Vincent Stanley. Deceased belonged to St. Lawrence, but no particulars regarding the drowning were contained in the message.

$10,000,000 Company For Newfoundland

To Engage in the Boneless Fish Industry

A British company is negotiating for the purchase of the big fish plant at Bay Bulls, Newfoundland, says the Canadian Fisherman, of April, with a view to starting the shredded and boneless fish industry. The company has a capital of two million pounds and will also engage in the export of dried codfish to the European market as well as the export of fresh fish to Great Britain and the United States.

A St. John's fish exporter will be the local manager and if present negotiations are successful the work will start in June next. Besides codfish they will handle salmon and herring and prepare the same in various cures for the foreign markets.

The Cadets and Glenconrie will play a friendly football match on the former's grounds this evening.

S. S. Melita's Due Here To-morrow

The C. P. R. Liner Melita, which is calling here for the passengers and crew of the ill-fated Marvale is due here to-morrow afternoon and immediately after all have embarked, the ship will sail for Liverpool. Mr. Benjamin, of the C.P.R. passenger office, is coming by the ship. It is understood the Melita will be taking a mail for England from this port.

THE WRECK SURVEYED.

On Wednesday, Captain Stuart, of Dale & Company, accompanied by Captain Lewis and Mr. J. J. Bates, visited the wreck and held a survey. The ship is still in the same position, and a full report has been forwarded to the Underwriters and it is expected that something definite regarding salvage operations will be decided to-day. The Marvale was carrying 52 bags of mail matter, and it is expected that divers will be engaged to get this and also whatever baggage that is possible to get from the wreck. On Wednesday two sacks of flour floated from the wreck, but this is all that has come out of her as yet though it is understood that a schooner that was bound west, went alongside the wreck on Monday evening and her crew took anything movable above water. The ship's cargo is a very valuable one and when she breaks up, the people in the vicinity will do well.

C.P.R. PAYING ALL EXPENSES.

It is understood the C.P.R. are paying all the expenses of the passengers and crew, both here and at Trepassy and St. Shott's. At the latter places practically every store was cleared out in order to cater to the wreck sufferers. On the train coming to the city, meals were served as the party got on board, and in order to dispose of them with despatch, the diners were dispensed with and meals consisting of coffee, tea, sandwiches, biscuits, etc. were served by the waiters assisted by the ship's stewards.

A YOUTHFUL TRAVELLER.

At the Grenfell Institute is little Miss May O'Donohue, hailing from Liverpool, where her parents are now awaiting her homecoming. She is eleven years old and some weeks ago she was sent out to her aunt in Chicago with whom she intended remaining, but not liking the change is now returning home. She is bright and vivacious, and from the first captivated the hearts of all on board. At the Institute Mr. and Mrs. Holmes have taken her as their special guest, and she is enjoying her forced stay here immensely.

WAS MANY YEARS IN THE SERVICE.

Captain Lewis has been in the employ of the C.P.R. for over 25 years and has a splendid record as a master marine. Previous to joining the Marvale, he was in command of the E. S. Montreal which was engaged in the Italian Service, and he transferred to the Marvale just a few weeks ago. Captain Davidson, who was on the Marvale, then the Corsican, when she visited this port in 1919, died early this year on board the Marvale, shortly after his arrival from India in which service the ship was engaged.

Glenburnie at Sandy Point

HEAVY ICE IN MOUTH OF GULF

The Customs Department received the following message on Wednesday from the Sub-Collector at Sandy Point, Bay St. George:—"Glenburnie, Captain Dubgeon, from Glasgow for Montreal, arrived here, having been floated off Shoal Point Tuesday morning. Her pumps are keeping her free, and she is now waiting orders to proceed. Canadian Government ice-breaker "Mikala" assisted her to anchorage and left again in answer to calls for assistance from Gulf. She reports ice very heavy across the mouth of the Gulf."
